1. INTRODUCTION

The International Labour Law, worth six credits, is especially recommended for students of Law, Business Administration, Tourism and other degrees in Social Sciences. Prior knowledge of the basics of Labour Law and International Law and an acceptable standard of English are advisable in order to facilitate a thorough understanding of the subject.

The course is designed to give the students a general overview and understanding of the international aspects of current Labour Law. It is divided into three parts: General Overview, Labour Law of the United Nations and International Labour Regulation of the Council of Europe. In each of these parts, the main topics of International Labour and Social Law in a globalized world are analysed. These include internationalization, the sources of International Labour Law and its agents, fundamental principles and rights at work, international instruments on working and employment conditions, social protection and international labour migration.

In short, the purpose of this module is to provide students with a conceptual foundation so that they can develop professionally, equipped with an adequate understanding of labour relations and social security in the international environment. This module is therefore extremely useful for students of Law, Business Administration, Tourism and other degrees in Social Sciences, given the current environment of globalization and economic interdependence and the phenomenon of labour migration, which is becoming more and more relevant. The fact that the course is taught in English makes it particularly valuable, since English is used in cross-border legal relations and economic exchanges.

While the module is taught from a theoretical perspective, there is a constant focus on the practical applications of the material. The module is taught by an expert in the subject, which means that students acquire practical knowledge. This is undoubtedly an advantage as students achieve a high level of expertise. Moreover, the student’s prior knowledge is taken into consideration and the social experience that they have acquired in their own lives is harnessed and recast into technical knowledge. The students use real case studies to develop hypotheses and solutions. Where possible, the teacher will also organize seminars in which student participation and debate are encouraged. The aim of these seminars is to encourage reflection analysis, teamwork and the ability to summarise information.

Summary:

International Labour Law is an optional and cross-cutting course which includes the fundamental aspects of this important part of Labour Law, taking into consideration the continuous processes of internationalisation and globalization of national legal systems. The course consists of the three following parts: general framework of International Labour Law; Labour Law of the United Nations, and International Labour Regulation of the Council of Europe. The subject provides a theoretical and practical approach of these core issues. For a better performance, it is convenient that students have a previous knowledge of the basic concepts and sources of Law.

2. SKILLS

General skills:

1. Analysing, understanding and summarising theoretical information.
2. Engaging in reflective, critical and autonomous learning.
3. Solving legal problems and applying theoretical knowledge to practical cases by identifying conflicts.
4. Developing and defending positions through arguments and legal reasoning.
5. Developing the social skills needed for teamwork, cooperation and collaboration and understanding the difficulties and benefits inherent in collaborative work.
6. Applying the skills needed for legal information.
7. Acquiring the ability to engage in self-criticism.
8. Developing skills related to written and oral communication.
9. Developing the ability to integrate and summarise knowledge.

Specific skills:

1. Acquiring basic knowledge in the field of International Labour Law by referring to appropriate reading materials. Keeping abreast of the latest developments in technology and the legal and scientific fields.

2. Analysing and summarising information and studying the theoretical content of the discipline using reading materials published in English.

3. Problem-solving and the practical application of knowledge by interpreting rules and legal arguments in written and oral exercises. These activities may be done individually or in groups.

4. Being able to make critical judgements about current labour law.

5. Acquiring the autonomous learning skills needed for further study. The knowledge that students acquire on this module will allow them to work in research, in the professional field (legal advice, legal representation of parties involved in labour relations, etc.) in the civil service (e.g. the Labour and Social Security Inspectorate, the technical section of the Social Security Department, etc.) or as officials in various international organisations such as the UN or, in particular, the ILO.

5. ASSESSMENT: Procedures, assessment criteria and grading system

Assessment criteria

A) Continuous assessment system: This is the preferred method of assessment in the standard examination session (i.e. when students are being assessed for the first time). Therefore, it is the method that is normally used, except in the case of students who are recognized as being eligible for the final exam.

In order to be eligible for continuous assessment students must attend at least 80% of classes.

Students who do not inform the Faculty of Law that they wish to opt out of the continuous assessment option will be considered as having failed to participate in the assessment process for the module and will not be allowed to attend the final exam.

Students who choose the continuous assessment option and don't comply with the basic requirements of attendance and participation or who make a unilateral decision to opt out of the continuous assessment system will be given a ‘fail’ result.

B) Final assessment system: In the standard examination session this method of assessment is only available to students who have been recognized as eligible for the final exam in accordance with the assumptions and conditions that are expressly stipulated in the regulations governing learning assessment procedures, adopted by the Governing Council of the University of Alcalá. Therefore, students must apply in writing to the Dean in the first two weeks of teaching, explaining why they cannot participate in the continuous assessment process.

In the repeat examination session all students are assessed by means of the final assessment system.

The final assessment is a written exam with theoretical and practical components.

Assessment Criteria

- Knowledge of the core concepts within each section of the syllabus.

- Ability to apply theoretical knowledge in practice.

- Originality, accuracy and clarity of expression in the exam, practical sessions, presentations and debates.

- Use of recommended reading materials.
- Participation in theory and practical sessions, seminars and trials.

Grading System

According to the Royal Decree 1125/2003, which entered into force on 5 September and which regulates the Diploma Supplement, the grading system should use the following scale, which applies both numerical (with one decimal) and qualitative marks:

0.0 – 4.9  FAIL
5.0 – 6.9  PASS
7.0 – 8.9  MERIT
9.0 – 10  DISTINCTION
9.0 – 10  STARRED DISTINCTION (limited to 5% of students)

A) The continuous assessment method is based on the following criteria:

a) The final mark is the average of the marks obtained in individual course units, which are assessed by means of quizzes, exercises, assignments and presentations.

b) Attendance and high-quality participation in sessions where students give presentations, engage in debate and defend work produced can add up to 1 point to the final grade.

c) Personal interviews will be held at the end of each course unit when it is considered appropriate for determining the final mark.

B) The final exam takes into account the following criteria:

a) Theoretical component: 60% of the mark.

b) Practical component: 40% of the mark.

6. RECOMMENDED READING

ILO (1944), Declaration concerning the aims and purposes of the International Labour Organisation, adopted by the Conference at its twenty-sixth Session, Philadelphia, 10 May 1944.
